

Datalex plc

Notice to Shareholders

Dublin, Ireland 6 November, 2009

Datalex hereby informs its shareholders that on the 2nd of November it threatened legal proceedings in the Commercial Court at Dublin against a customer, Flight Centre Limited ("Flight Centre") of Australia.

Subsequent to the threat of those proceedings, Flight Centre have commenced proceedings against us in the Supreme Court at Queensland, Australia and their claim is in relation to the deployment of our software in Flight Centre's travel agency business.

We believe that the institution of these proceedings by Flight Centre is defensive in the extreme and their action is without any basis or merit and we will be fully defending them.

We will also continue to proceed with our action claiming payment by Flight Centre of monies due and owing to us for works that we have carried out for Flight Centre to date.

We will counterclaim in the Queensland proceedings for substantial damages arising out of the Flight Centre decision not to deploy our software across their travel agency business.

As both matters are now sub judice, there will be no further comment by the Company concerning the matter other than as required for by law.
